EDMONTON BULLETIN, OCTOBER 16th, 1893.

ELECTRIC RAILWAY.

Norman Ross of Winnipeg, representing the Canadian General Electric Co., of Toronto, arrived on Thursday's train from Lethbridge where he has been superintending the installation of the electric lighting system of that town. Mr. Ross is district engineer for the company for the region from Port Arthur west and is visiting Edmonton for the purpose of estimating on an electric railway to connect the town with the C. & E. station. The company which Mr. Ross represents put in among other plants the Montreal, Toronto, Port Arthur, Winnipeg, Niagara Falls and New Westminster-Vancouver systems. After looking over the ground and finding out as nearly as possible the grades and curves on the proposed railway and the nature and amount of the service required Mr. Ross will make a business offer in regard to cost. In the meantime the following figures given by him may be taken as a fair maximum:

Road bed including grade, ties and rails, 5 miles at $6,000 a mile, $ 30 000

Poles, set, $500 a mile for 5 miles, 2 500

150 horse power engine with two 100 horse power boilers, dynamo and station apparatus, trolley and feeder wires and 1 motor car fitted with two 30 horse power motors erected complete, 27 000

$59,000

The amount of power given by this apparatus would enable the hauling of a load of 70,000 pounds down and up a three percent grade, or roughly a grade of 200 feet in the mile. This would mean sufficient power to bring an ordinary railway freight car with its load right into town without breaking bulk, and unless the railway company objected, would place Edmonton practically on the line of the Calgary and Edmonton Ry. and overcome the chief objection to the electric railway, namely that it would necessitate reloading of freight. As to the practicability of crossing the river on a ferry pending the construction of a bridge, Mr. Ross says that there is no electrical objection. It is simply a matter of a large enough ferry boat, and making connection with the track, which of course would be a serious difficulty, owing to the rising and falling of the river but in case of necessity might be surmounted. Of course there would be no impediment to laying a track on the ice during the winter. The cost of running would be the wages of three men, an engineer, a fireman and a motorman, and the fuel consumed. Taking for granted that it would not be necessary to run more than six hours a day to transact the present business, the consumption of coal for that time would be about 1½ tons, costing about $3.00, as the best coal need not be used. The men's wages might be estimated at $100 per month for an engineer, having necessary knowledge of electricity, $50 per month each for fireman and motorman. Taking the consumption of fuel as given for 26 days in each month and the wages list given the running expenses per month would be $278 or $3,336 a year. Interest on $60,000 capital at 6 per cent $3,600 a year or $6,936 in all. If the expenditure mentioned would give the results promised, and there is no reason to doubt that it would with proper management, for outside figures are given both as to requirements and cost, it is not too much to say that the town is now paying a great deal more money for a great deal less value. It must be remembered, however, in this connection that the outlay on the railway would have an earning power which would certainly very greatly diminish the yearly cost to the town, if not become source of considerable revenue. That is a matter, however, which can be figured most closely by the dealers bringing goods across the river and shipping produce out.

The BULLETIN has no desire to urge the making of any rash bargain in regard to this matter of most vital importance to the future of this town and the surrounding country, but it is strongly of opinion that the most careful and thorough enquiry into the electric railway question should be commenced at once by those who are most deeply interested in the town, with a view of placing ourselves in a position to permanently command the trade of this great region, not only including the fertile district around the town but the country for 1,500 miles north to the Arctic ocean and west to the Rocky mountains.

The Winnipeg Commercial carries a large and elaborate land advertisement of the Great Northern railway, relating to the lands of Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Washington. The Commercial is supposed to be governed by business principles. It may think it good business to take pay for the use of its advertising columns for the purpose of attracting settlers from the country which it serves and can only hope to serve; but it must value its influence as an advertising medium very cheaply if it thinks that the price of this advertisement is value for the use of its columns to attempt a direct injury upon every present or prospective patron of the paper. The patrons of the Commercial should let themselves be heard from by the manager on this point. It is such fool "business" as this that has helped the Canadian exodus in the past and has cost us a fifth of our people.

Winnipeg Commercial, October 7th: Oats maintain a firm tone, notwithstanding new crop offerings, and the feeling is that prices will be well maintained, as the crop is light over a large portion of the country. Some districts will not have a surplus. The Red river valley gives the best crop, both in quantity and quality. Old oats are held at 24c to 26c in car lots at country points. Dealers were trusting to farmers' deliveries of new to supply the local market, but deliveries have been cut off by bad roads, and stocks in the city were accordingly very light. A sale of a lot of new in store was made at 27c. for local consumption, which advanced price was made possible by light offerings.

Calgary Herald: Alexander Stewart of the Rosebud sheep ranch near Carstairs, returned north yesterday. Mr. Stewart, speaking from seven years' experience, declares Alberta to be a grand country for sheep raising. He has no trouble with wolves as he takes the precaution to keep good dogs.

Calgary Tribune: Supt. Niblock, has secured Sarah Lord Bailey, the clever elocutionist, for a series of concerts in aid of the Medicine Hat hospital. We hope Mr. Niblock will make a success of his concert tour, which is to open shortly.

Calgary Tribune: It is rather rough on the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, for it to be obliged to slaughter not less than twenty-one head of their fine cattle infected with tuberculosis. The barns are now being thoroughly disinfected.

The Winnipeg Commercial says that there is no doubt W. F. Luxton will be in control of a new daily paper in Winnipeg inside of a few weeks.

The Scandinavian Canadian reports no less than fourteen members of that nationality in Winnipeg hospital with typhoid fever.

Money spent towards the support of a newspaper is almost entirely spent within the town in which the paper is published and is therefore not lost to the business of the town.

The local newspaper represents the district in which it is published to the outside world.

Support your home paper liberally if it deserves support, so that it can give the best possible impression of your town and district as a field for immigration and investment.

EDMONTON EXHIBITION.

The Edmonton exhibition on Thursday and Friday of last week was not as successful in all its features as has been the rule in other years. For this the productiveness of the past season was not to blame, for it has seldom been excelled in all important particulars. The chief drawback no doubt was the cold and unseasonable weather which has been continuous since September 16th, and which by delaying harvesting operations has now caused an extra rush to get everything into shape before the setting in of winter. With the last of the stacking to be finished and with fall plowing and threshing both in progress it is not to be greatly wondered at that the attendance of both spectators and exhibitors was not larger. Of course, although the farmers really had not time to trim up stock or produce for exhibition or to attend the show, a few made time and all might have done so had they seen it to be their interest to the extent that it really is. There is no doubt that a properly conducted agricultural exhibition is a very great means of benefit to the farming industry directly, and indirectly to every other interest and industry in the country. Had the weather been as good on Thursday as it was on Friday no doubt the number of exhibitors and spectators would have been greater, but it was cold, windy and threatening and no doubt many people hesitated about exposing their stock and products to they did not know what severity. Fortunately the threatening of Thursday did not amount to anything and Friday was as fine a day as heart could desire. The show of live stock was small in all classes, but some very good animals appeared in each class, showing that improved stock is being brought in. The show of poultry was like that of live stock, some good birds but very few of them. In the hall where the agricultural and dairy products were shown, and which has always been Edmonton's strong point, a much better showing was made than in live stock, and in some particulars it was ahead of former years. A very noticeable feature in the exhibit was the display of grains, grasses and small fruits from the Indian Head experimental farm in charge of Angus McKay, manager of the farm. This exhibit comprised 18 varieties of wheat in the straw, including a variety with a black chaff and short beard; 19 varieties of oats, 14 of barley and 16 of grass, which included red top, timothy Kentucky blue grass, orchard grass, alsike clover and a number of other varieties with unfamiliar names but familiar appearance, including the sweetgrass, so common here, but with a long hard name. The various samples were well arranged, showing how effective care and taste are in making a good display. The grain and grass had both been cut at exactly the right time to preserve all the healthy color possible and to have the grain just right as well, and each sample was as systematically arranged as though it were an expensive bouquet of rare flowers. Besides the grains and grasses there was an exhibit of small fruits that was worthy of careful attention. There were currants and berries of various kinds in small glass jars and preserved in some liquid which as far as possible left each berry its natural shape and color. The principal currants were: Red Dutch, White Grape, Fay's prodigy—the latter as large as cherries—black Naples and wild black currants; the Turner and Peider raspberry, the latter very large; the Manchester strawberry, Smith's improved gooseberry, very large and fine; black hill cherry, and yellow plum tomato. Near the Indian Head exhibit was an exhibit of Edmonton grain in the straw and Edmonton grasses. While the arrangement of the Edmonton samples was not as tasteful as that of those from Indian Head, it was very evident the Edmonton exhibit was far ahead in length of straw and grass and the grain was also ahead in length of head and size of grain. There was a very strong similarity between most of the cultivated grasses in the farm exhibit and the wild grasses of the Edmonton exhibit, some of the varieties being identical in species, although very different in length. The Edmonton timothy was nearly twice as long as that brought from Indian Head and the pea vine and vetch of Edmonton—seven feet in length and covered with pods—had no competitor in the Indian Head exhibit. In onions the show of seed onions was larger and better than ever before, there being eleven exhibits. White, yellow and red onions were shown in good numbers. A yellow onion measured 1 foot one inch in circumference and a red onion 1 foot 2 inches. The show of potatoes was fair but has been excelled on other occasions. There were 16 exhibits. One rural New Yorker potato measured 1 ft by 1 ft 9 inches in girth. Red cabbage was very good, but white cabbage and cauliflower were not. Turnips were fair. Mangolds good. A white carrot measured 1 1/4 inches around, a horn carrot measured 10 1/2 inches and a field carrot 11 inches around. A mangold was 16 inches around by 1 ft 7 inches in length. There was one exhibit of corn and one of pumpkins. The show of grain was rather better than usual, the quality of all grain being very good and it was well cleaned, but still the competition was not as keen as is desirable. There were 2 samples of black oats, 4 of white oats, 1 of black hullless barley, 1 of 6 rowed barley, 4 of 2 rowed barley—an excellent sample—1 of flaxseed, 4 of timothy seed, 5 of red life wheat, 1 of white life and 1 of Azof. The show of butter was not as large as usual, although the quality was all right, and the same may be said of the bread and jam. Mr. Slocock of the H. B. Co. made a hit in the latter class taking 1st prize over exhibits by several ladies. No cheese was exhibited. The display of paintings of various kinds was very far ahead of former years and was a surprise to every one. The same may be said of the ladies' fancy work. The articles were new and the designs beautiful and well worked out. The school exhibits were also numerous and very good. The show of homespun work was small but very nice, and useful. In specialties for purposes of exhibition but not for competition may be mentioned a most beautiful collection of photographs by C. W. Mathers, some of them tinted very well. A cage of canaries was shown by Wm. Easton, and attracted a great deal of attention. T. H. Ingram had an Alexandra milk separator at work. The Singer sewing machine was on view operated by the agent Mr. Glover of Glover & Andrews, and also the Williams machine operated by the agent. A beautiful display of musk robes was made by John Cameron. Taken altogether those who missed seeing the exhibit in Robertson Hall missed both pleasure and information. On Thursday evening the fire brigade band was in attendance and the hall was crowded with visitors and again on Friday afternoon up to the hour for removing the exhibits there was scarcely room to move around. The band played for a short time on Friday afternoon. The parade of first prize stock on Friday afternoon did not take place as advertised owing to arrangements having been made to await the arrival of the British delegates who were expected early in the afternoon. But as the party did not appear until four o'clock it was found impossible to hold the stock until that time. The following is the list of prizes and winners:
